

About the Summit

The aim of the Sustainable Foods Summit is to address the major issues the food industry faces concerning sustainability and eco-labels, such as Organic, Fair Trade, Rainforest Alliance, etc.

Taking place in San Francisco on 17-18th January 2012, the 5th edition of this executive summit focused on sustainable proteins & ingredients and ecological packaging. The environmental and social impacts of sustainable ingredients were discussed as well as the gamut of ecological packaging options available to food and beverage companies. Case studies were given of organizations at the cutting edge of implementing sustainability initiatives.

Like previous events organized by Organic Monitor, it brought together key stake-holders in the food industry, including food manufacturers, ingredient & raw material suppliers, retailers & distributors, industry organizations & certification agencies, researchers & academics, investors, etc.
